Deploying multiple windows forms application(s) in an asp.net website I have an ASP.Net website which contains one master page and many forms with C# code. Now I have two separate applications which could be windows application, console application or any other. Both these applications have two forms each. I am using the webforms technology of the two applications. What I want to achieve is that, as soon as the applications are fired. I want to make these applications appear on a single form. So, that I could use both these applications in one single page. I can use any of the possible technologies. A: If you are using the asp.net mvc. It will be much easier to deploy by just sending.dll files or even sending the whole folder with the different projects. Please have a look at this link which will help you with making those applications appear on the same form. This link Will help you to make this possible. 3e33713323
