New camera and camera-proximity features, including an all-new nav-cam and camera-cloak, allow players to be even more immersed in their on-field experience. FIFA 22 launches globally this November on Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC. “With the FIFA 20 Ultimate Team Season’s Journey, including FIFA 20 ULTIMATE TEAM Season Ticket and Monthly Squad Pack, we have some of the most popular and highest-skilled players in the world coming to action this season. To succeed, we have ensured that our player line-ups incorporate the best players from the FIFA community. Now it’s time to go one step further with our fans and get the real deal on all of them,” said Adam Introski, Head of Global Soccer Business at EA. “With FIFA 22, we’re bringing the most realistic and authentic football experience to the EAWorld, and by combining top-rated FIFA technology with state-of-the-art virtual reality (VR) technology, players can experience football like never before.” [embedded content] New camera and camera-proximity features for FIFA 22: The stunning inclusion of VR technology in FIFA 22 creates enhanced player models that are more detailed than ever before, allowing for players to appear as if they are right in your living room. One example includes the head-mounted display (HMD), or “head-tracking.” Players can now use their head to look around the stadium and see the ball moving in 3D. They can even glimpse real-world players within the environment. This is just one of many technologies in FIFA 22 that build on FIFA 20 to deliver an immersive on-field experience.
