Autodesk Revit 2016 Crack.A Desperate Year for Labor By James Walcott 29 November 2006 United Airlines announces 3,000 job cuts This month, United Airlines announced that it would cut 3,000 jobs and move 18,000 airline employees from one state to another. These are devastating implications for the workers, who should still be able to find new work as a result of the mass layoffs. But the job cuts point to an increase in the number of Americans without a job as well as the widespread attacks on the labor movement, and they are being carried out by a business magnate who is not expected to lose his $2 billion fortune. In a further sign that the Wall Street Crash of 2008 has a long way to go before it arrives, Warren Buffett, the millionaire owner of the insurance and investment conglomerate Berkshire Hathaway, has given up trying to turn the company he inherited into a value-added business. Instead, he is transferring the bulk of its stock holdings to a new business, Buffett Partners. "The long-term opportunities for Berkshire Hathaway have little to do with value-added products and services," said Buffett in his letter to shareholders. Buffett, the ultimate capitalist, has just about wiped out the labor aristocracy by carrying out a series of backroom deals with the AFL-CIO and the US Congress. Those deals have gutted the union health, pension, and other benefits that have made the corporate aristocracy so rich. Only the politically ultra-right is happy about the destruction of the labor movement, and more and more workers are joining the Tea Party. e79caf774b
