Most players use a variety of techniques to maximize their performance, whether it be new training methods, carefully honed game settings or more advanced equipment. With this new technology, players can rely on real-time feedback to make adjustments and refine their techniques and improve their performance. The Real Player Motion Analysis As players move about the pitch and attempt to complete actions, motion capture suit-based sensors collect data on their movements. Players can then access this data via EA SPORTS Football Club and FIFA Ultimate Team at any time. The data is available to refine player movements and behaviours, either when training, in-game or in the video manager. As players play any given action, they can also receive real-time feedback through an in-game match- or training-specific overlay to help provide a better feel for the challenge they will face. The Real Player Movement Analysis When a player performs a certain action or movement, a camera inside the motion capture suit detects the movement and collects real-time data. This data is then available to use in the video manager, in-game and in the Training Room. Personalization Options Personalization options have been extended to enhance the way each player tackles, shoots, passes, dribbles and defends the ball. Real Player Training As players move around the pitch during a training session, their movements are tracked and data is captured in-game. Players can then access these tracking data to improve their on-pitch techniques. Real Player Training Centre Players can access the Training Room to look at the data generated when they play various activities. As players improve their on-pitch skills, such as passing, shooting, dribbling and more, their real-time feedback improves. Players can adjust their gameplay settings, improve their feel for the game and ultimately improve their performance. Return of Touchline If a player hits the ball, they can see an outline of the goal on the Touchline, alerting them to a favourable shooting opportunity. The real-time information in FIFA 22 is a refinement and extension of the popular FIFA 17 and FIFA 18 player feedback feature, introduced in 2015. The analysis of player movements is key to improved movement detection and in-game player recognition. The adoption of advanced artificial intelligence and gesture-based input technology is key to making FIFA 22 an immersive and thrilling game experience. The Top Shots AI FIFA players will evolved. Now fans can accelerate players' growth and nurture their tactical mastery through the creation and management of detailed custom-made Player Sheets. • YourManager Mode gives you complete control of your team. Now up to 40 players can take part in any match. • The new, user-friendly Squad Builder helps you to design, tweak and preview an unbeatable team. • Goalkeeper ratings have been refined and improved. Take goalkeeping out of the mind of the keeper and make him think about positioning and angles. Player Ratings System The Player Ratings System (PRS) is a metric that evaluates the player's overall rating with regards to how good he is at certain game-related actions. The Player Ratings System gives you a deeper insight into each player's attributes, giving you a more in-depth comparison of players. Ratings are based on your choice of attributes to measure, including goalkeeping, ball control, ball retention, shooting, heading, passing and dribbling. Those attributes are then combined into a rating and ranked within the team. The key to a successful team is to get the right blend of individual ratings. With a player's overall rating, you'll now know whether he's a complete stand-out or whether he's a useful player within your team, and it's that last factor you'll be looking for in the new update. Player Roles Players now have more defined roles within your team, while tactics have been adjusted to ensure balance between the various tactical formations. Players will need to find their place in the team, and in order to do that, each role will need to be mastered. During games, the coaches will be able to analyse all the stats, both positive and negative, to help determine which player best fits their role. bc9d6d6daa
